Grandparents Day Celebration

16th November 2017

Grandparents are special to every child. Their bed-time stories are integral part of everyone's growing up years. They are also the wise and experienced ones we turn to in times of trouble. Their knowledge is invaluable and their love unconditional. In keeping with this, British International School celebrated Grandparents' Day last Thursday, 16th November, 2017.

Year 1-4 students were all excited to perform before their grandparents. They sang and danced their feet as they entertained their grandparents with glee. Dramas unfolded the little ones love for their grandparents. An overjoyed grandparent from Year 1-L, said, "I feel proud to see my grandchild Ghana performed on stage. This is my first time that I am attending such a program. It is a nice feeling to see her school inculcate such values in her." Others too lauded the school's effort. Another grandparent, Sama's grandma from the same class said, "The school is doing a great job of reviving moral values in our society. These days, children often don't respect or have time for the elderly and go about doing their own work. I am happy that my grandchild is learning to value us."

Kids, too, were elated to surprise their loved ones with such special performances. Yamen, while waiting for his performance to start, quipped, "I love my grandparents and I promise I will make them proud someday. It is a nice feeling to see them encourage me to perform."

The school's decision to celebrate Grandparents' Day is expected to bring about a positive change in the outlook of the present generation.
